

BBC ENTERPRISES

Woodlands 80 Wood Lane London W12 0TT Telephone: 01 743 5588 & 01 576 0202 Telex: 934678 & 265781 Cables: Telecentre London

EDUCATION & TRAINING SALES

BBC Resource Booklets for the Domesday Discs

The launch of the BBC Domesday Discs in November 1986 has made Britain the leader in the fast developing field of interactive video, a technology that couples the versatility of the microcomputer with the phenomenal video and digital storage capacity of the optical disc.

The two Domesday Discs - the Community and the National - contain a vast storehouse of resource materials in maps, text, photographs, film and statistical data sets ideally suited for educational users at all levels ranging from primary to postgraduate and continuing education courses.

During the Spring and Summer Terms of 1987 the following educational groups throughout the United Kingdom have developed guideline materials, highlighting the use of the Domesday Discs as a resource database to amplify projects and in-service training for teachers in a wide range of curricular areas. These seven resource booklets, launched in September 1987, are the result of practical classroom trialling and are offered as a springboard for further ideas for imaginative learners of all ages, pointing out the versatility and depth of information now available to the educational sector in the BBC Domesday Discs.

Curricular area

Educational Groups

Projects and Topics

Northern Ireland Education and
Library Boards
Bulmershe College, Reading

Mathematics

School of Education,
University of Exeter

Social Sciences

Gwent Local Education Authority (LEA)
and Gwent Institute of Higher Education

Environmental Education

Moray House College of Education,
Edinburgh, and Scottish LEAs

Art; Craft, Design
& Technology

Gateshead LEA
North-Eastern Education and Library
Board, N.I.

Geography

University of Loughborough

In-Service Training

Christ Church College, Canterbury

